One of the words most frequently heard on our campus this year was "koinonia", a Greek term translated "fellowship" in the New Testament. We learn from the New Testament that this "koinonia" is not something which we bring into existence, but it is a fellowship into which God calls us through faith in Christ. One of the goals of this scholastic year has been an increased awareness and a fuller exercise of this koinonia. These pages are an attempt to reflect some of the experiences of our "koinonia" not only as members of the Christian Church, but more particularly, as members of the seminary family.

Dedication

THEODORE GRAEBNER 1876-1950

W. GUSTAVE POLACK 1890-1950

Since the close of the last school year, two of our outstanding professors, Dr. W. Gustave Polack and Dr. Theodore Graebner, entered their eternal home. Both men were devoted servants of the Lord, and had served Him faithfully at Concordia Seminary for many years. In addition to his inspiration as a teacher, Dr. Polack performed valuable work with the Concordia Historical Institute and in the preparation of the new Lutheran Hymnal. As the greatest journalist of our church, Dr. Graebner exerted a lasting influence through his long editorship of the Lutheran Witness, and the many volumes which came from his pen. To these men of Christ we dedicate this book.

The Administration

In spite of his many duties as president of the seminary, Dr. Sieck manages to maintain close ties with the student body. His office hours are never so crowded that he is unable to find time to see students seeking his help. His deep roligious fervor is evident in his inspiring chapel devotions. "Smoker" audiences are always delighted with his sense of humor, and all the quadmen will long remember him, as both president and friend.

LOUIS J. SIECK, D.D.
President

THE BOARD OF CONTROL

The Board of Control is a group of laymen and clergymen who direct the policy of the seminary. Pastor John Oppliger serves as its secretary, Pastor G. W. Wittmer as its chairman, and Mr. Charles S. Lottman as its treasurer.

THE ELECTORAL COLLEGE

The Electoral College chooses new professors whenever vacancies occur. Dr. J. W. Behnken, Pastor Henry A. Grueber, Pastor E. L. Roschke, and the Board of Control comprise this important group.

LEONHARD C. WUERFFEL, M.A Dean of Students

Dean Wuerffel is one of the busiest men on the campus. His work as dean brings him into personal contact with virtually every seminarian. As dean, he is the most important figure in student-faculty relationships, and the fine spirit of fellowship between faculty and student is evidence of his succes in this work. He is one of the first persons new men of the quad meet, and will be one of the last they will forget.

Vicars

The Vicars, though missing from the campus, were still very much a part of the Seminary family. Scattered through the United States and three foreign countries, they performed many of the duties of the pastoral office under careful and experienced supervision. Enriched by their year's internship, they will return next year to complete their Seminary studies.

We hope to meet again.

A number of candidates for the degree of Master of Sacred Theology were: Brauer, Schuller, Reimann, Brelje, C. Streufert, Kruggel.

Rev. Clarence Peters, pastor of St. Luke's Church, earned the Doctor of Theology degree.

Some of these men travel as far as 160 miles for the pastor's refresher course.

Graduate School

With an enrollment during the first semester of almost one hundred pastors and graduate students, the Graduate School again operated on a full scale basis. Approximately twenty were candidates for the degree of Master of Sacred Theology, while the degree of Doctor of Theology was conferred upon the Rev. Clarence Peters, pastor of St. Luke's Church in St. Louis. In recent years, the regular activities of the school have been broadened and expanded under the leadership of its director, Dr. Alfred M. Rehwinkel.

These six seminarians will leave early this summer for a two-year term of vicarage in our rapidly expanding mission field in Japan They are: Lueking, Patschke, R. Schroeder, W. Lange, Becker, and Wennerstrom.

Graduate students who did research in the history of missions in India are the Rev. Armand Graf and the Rev. Elmer E. Griesse.

Extensive work was again accomplished in the Mission School this year in preparing men and women for foreign mission fields. Under the leadership of Prof. E. C. Zimmermann, the School of Missions has kept stride with the increased demand for overseas missionaries. Workers were trained this year for stations in Japan, New Guinea, Africa, and India. More than one hundred students have been trained in the school since its beginning ten years ago.

Field Work

"Please report to the Field Work office this atternoon at 3:30 p.m." A similar announcement is received by every student at least once a year. For it is the Field Work office, directed by Rev. C. T. Schmidt, which assigns summer field work, regular twelvementh vicarages, and resident field work among churches and institutions in the St. Louis area.

To make the work more meaningful to the student, regular reports are required, and group conferences are held with Rev. Schmidt to discuss the experiences in the field. Having had its beginnings in a small mission society, the Field Work Department is now an established and valuable part of the curriculum.

PUBLICATIONS COMMITTEE — BE-LOW: Phipps, Heckmann, Bolin.

These committees dealt with special functions of the Students' Association. One member of the Board of Proctors lived in each dormitory, served as counselor, and was responsible for reporting breakages and supplying shortages. The Program Committee directed the social activities on campus, including the planning of fellowship banquets and the clearing of dates for all activities. The Lyceum Committee brought a series of entertaining and educational programs to campus, including Polgar the hypnotist and the Trapp Family Singers. Supervising the work of the campus publications was the duty of the Publicity and Publications Committee. The Business and Finance Committee assisted the Comptroller and Treasurer in their work.

FINANCE COMMITTEE—Bolin, Mehring, Misterek, Engelbrecht, Krentz, Krampitz, Hummel.

The Seminarian

Ably edited by Warren Rubel, the Seminarian served well in its role of student newspaper and magazine. In addition to reporting campus news, each issue of the Seminarian contained thought provoking articles on theological problems. Assisting the editor were: Hans Boehringer, managing editor; Ed Schroeder, news editor; Charles Reichert, sports editor; John Lemkul, editorial assistant; Richard Bolín, business manager; Don Frank and Richard Tremain, circulation managers; and Dr. L. J. Sieck and Dean L. C. Wuerffel, consultants. A number of other students were regular contributors.

The Mission Call

Now in its sixth year of publication, the Mission Call has done outstanding work in the promotion of foreign missions. News direct from the mission fields was especially featured. Sponsored by the Foreign Mission Society, the Mission Call was edited by Clyde Kaminska. Other staff members were Paul Schulze, co-editor; Fred Stiemke, business manager; Paul Meyer, corresponding secretary; Bob Wennerstrom, circulation manager; Gunther Jahns, mailing secretary; and Theodore Moeller, publicity manager.

The Vicar

At the direction of the Association, the 1951 Vicar Staff produced an "economy size" book. Ralph Phipps served as editor. He was assisted in editorial work by Dale Young and Karl Rutz. Bill Lehmann was responsible for the photography, and Dick Borchers held the key to the money box. The soliciting of advertisements was the work of Dick Bolin, and the typist was Fred Dodge. Bill Friedrich, Ron Raedeke, and Les Zeitler were the staff assistants.

This year the Greek club examined the book of Exodus as it appears in the Septuagint version. Dr. William Arndt guided the study of the interesting problems of the book. The group also had the privilege of discussing and examining the progress which Dr. Arndt and his committee are making in the preparation of a new lexicon of the Greek New Testament.

Hoping to bring the Cospel to the deaf, members of the sign language club met in regular classes to learn the language spoken with the hands. Carl Stotik taught the beginner's class, while a smaller, advanced class was instructed by William Reinking.

The creation of student interest in the problems of Christian education is the purpose of the seminary chapter of the Lutheran Education Association. During the year the students participated in a panel discussion on "Church-state Relations and the Lutheran School" while the basis of a Christian philosophy of education was outlined in a lecture by Dr. Edwin H. Rian.

Music appreciation was offered for the students under the guidance of Prof. Walter Buszin. The course was designed especially to create appreciation of the works of many past and contemporary masters.

writing. The class was conducted once a week in small discussion groups under the guidance of Rev. E. J. Saleska.

Dr. Jaroslav Pelikan led the reading and discussion of the classics in the masterpieces of literature class. Members discussed Dante Alighieri and his chief work, "The Divine Comedy," and the life and works of the Russian author Dostoyevsky.

Man's newest means of communication were studied in the radio for the pastor class under the direction of Dr. R. R. Caemmerer. To answer the question, "How can the local pastor use radio and television," Dr. Caemmerer presented lectures and recordings. The students recorded sermons and produced a radio drama.

Meeting weekly with Mr. Gerhard Schroth, students in the leadership in group singing culture hour course spent an enjoyable and profitable hour discussing the nature of music and techniques of leading group singing. Emphasized also was group singing of folk songs.

Collegium Musicum

The collegium musicum was a unique choral group having no membership requirements other than the desire to sing. Although they emphasized Lutheran music, they also studied the secular madrigal and contemporary religious music. Student conductors were Irvin Arkin and Bernard Kurzweg, while Prof. Walter Buszin served as faculty adviser.

Friede's Philharmonic

Though concentrating on a type of music somewhat different than im plied by its name, Friede's Philharmonic did an admirable job of entertaining the crowds at all home basketball games. Led by trombonist "Friede" Reinking, the small ensemble played with a gusto that breathed life and spirit into the games.

Chapel Choir

The chapel choir, under the direction of Bernard Kurzweg, enriched the morning chapel services with sacred selections. The choir also participated in the Christmas Lyceum, performing two numbers from the Christmas oratorio by Schuetz. Employing their singing abilities in conveying the Gospel message in song, the group also sang at various other gatherings during the year.

Seminary Chorus

Living up to its high standards of choral work, the Seminary Chorus again won the praise of critics and audiences alike. Much credit is due to Dr. William B. Heyne for his brilliant work in moulding the men into a precision choral organization whose performances of sacred music brought spiritual refreshment. The twentieth annual concert tour carried the chorus into the Lone Star State and covered the greatest distance in chorus history.

Lutheran Hour Chorus

Singing for two network broadcasts of the International Lutheran Hour every week, the voices of the Lutheran Hour Chorus were heard in many countries. In addition, the chorus appeared on several telecasts of the Lutheran Hour. Walter Keller, who is serving his second year as director, conducts the chorus with finesse. During the summer the group will make a seven week tour of the West Coast.

COACH ELDON PEDERSON

Jeam Builder

Though only in his second year as physical education director, Coach Eldon Pederson has raised athletic activities to a new high. Besides doing an excellent job as coach of the basketball and baseball squads, "Pete" has worked tirelessly for wide participation in the physical education program. Through an elaborate intramural system, and by supplying the new gymnasium with a variety of game equipment, he has removed any excuse a student may have for the neglect of conditioning his body.

and Boosters

The athletic publicity committee prepared all news of the athletic department for on and off campus release. Continually sending copy to the newspapers and radio stations, the group also provided the opposing schools in the athletic schedule with full information of the seminary and team Paul Schulze served as chairman.

Brilliant Cage Season

A flip of the wrist and there it is! Jack Faszholz lays up one of his beautiful hook-shots in the Cape Girardeau game.

Jerry Otte goes up and grabs the rebound for the Preachers at Principia.

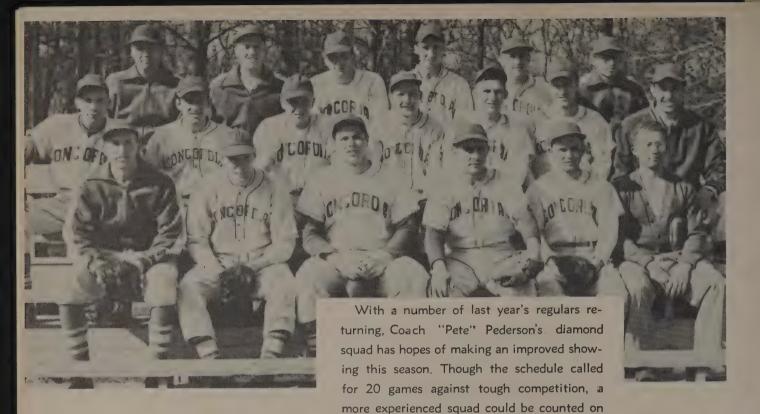

Bill Abram swishes a back-handed hook as Faszholz waits for the rebound in the crucial Valpo game.

Enjoying one of their best seasons in several years, the Preacher cagemen put Concordia back on the basketball map. Not until the final game of regular play did they suffer defeat on the home court. Most celebrated of their victories was the hair-raising win over Valpo, which avenged an earlier loss.

Most of the Preachers' scoring attack centered around Bill Abram and Jerry Otte. Big Ron Goerss and Dave Wacker kept Concordia in the game by cleaning off the backboards. Two smooth floormen, Jack Faszholz and Sammy Sammetinger, steadied the team considerably whenever the chips were down. Haas and Schumacher also contributed their share, especially in the last few games. Together, the boys donning the Blue and White made a scrappy, sharp-shooting quintet which caused many small colleges and universities to shake in their boots. A lot of determination, hard work, and a splendid coach did the job.

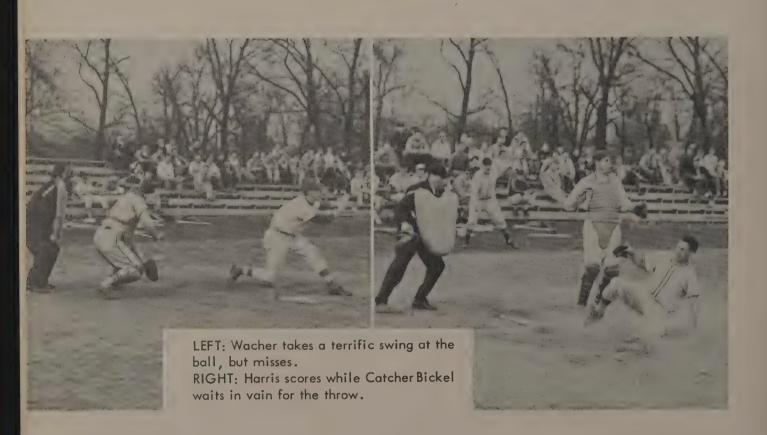

After copping tournament honors at Greenville, the Preachers lost to a keyed-up Valpo gang, 60-49. Then they breezed through 13 straight victories defeating such teams as Quincy and Illinois, only to have their streak broken by a tough Central quintet. The second game with Valpo was a thriller from beginning to end. Jerry Otte sank a free throw with six seconds to go to grab a 55-54 victory. After dropping two more to Quincy and Central, the Preachers ended their season by taking top honors in the first annual Concordia Tournament.

A Closing Word

As the school year comes to a close, we prepare to go in all directions, some never to return and live within these walls again. We go, determined that our fellowship shall not cease, that our "koinonia" which has been greatly enriched during the past year, shall not be bound by time or distance. Though many of us will not see each other again, our "koinonia" in Christ continues.
